

ABSTRACT

This invention provides a cooperative application system that is capable of displaying and reproducing the video or audio of a presentation at various locations that are separated from the location of the presentation without breaking up, and is also capable of reducing the burden of operation processing inside the terminal, and the terminal on the sending side comprises: a first application-control unit that outputs instructions to the application operating at the sending terminal; and a sending unit that sends the instructions that were output from the first application-control unit to the receiving terminal; and on the terminal on the receiving side comprises: a receiving unit that receives the instructions from the terminal on the sending side; and a second application-control unit that outputs the received instructions to the application operating at the terminal on the receiving side.